Based in the UNESCO World Heritage City of Bath, Bath Spa University is a highly successful teaching and research university with courses in the Arts, Education, Humanities, Social and Applied Sciences; from undergraduate programmes through to taught and professional Masters degrees and PhDs. The university has 8,800 students, including 3,100 postgraduates, and is organised within five Schools:

- School of Graduate Studies
- School of Society, Enterprise and Environment
- School of Humanities and Cultural Industries
- School of Music and Performing Arts
- School of Education
- School of Art and Design

Our students come from over 60 countries. Our degrees place an emphasis upon creativity, culture, enterprise and international partnerships to ensure that our graduates are socially engaged global citizens.

The university has a strong reputation for innovation and excellence in course design, teaching, research and professional development. For example, it has been designated a national 'Centre for Excellence in Teaching and Learning' by the UK's Funding Council; the UK's Office for Standards has graded all of the University's Teacher Education programs as 'outstanding'; and individual staff have been awarded National Teaching Fellowships to mark their educational achievements.

All international students are provided with personal tutors and student peer mentors, to support their academic studies and help them to settle into university life in Bath. The university offers a multi-faith environment, welcoming students of all faiths and none. The university is also proud of its reputation for sound financial management and strong track record of quality assurance and enhancement. Bath is ranked number 1 for the safest university city in the UK according to the Times Complete University Guide.
